Where are we and where are we going?

"Legaltech", "CLM tools", "Supplier Management." These are all great words and worlds that we artificially separate. The same underlying tools are connecting a multitude of functions and contracts are the heart of this. This session will look at what is out there and where we are going.

Senior CLM Consultant Krzysztof Kwiatek,
Contracts Consulting Elevate Services

10.35-11.10 Legal Operations

An in-house perspective on how to get more out of the legal function by optimising capabilities, systems, tools and processes. The traditional role of the legal function is to have lawyers provide legal advice. However, in today's world, with increasing complexity and demands, Legal is under pressure to deliver 'more for less'. Key to realising this goal is to improve Legal's

'engine room' – identifying and leaning key processes, establishing new systems and related workflows, and equipping Legal with the right competencies and capabilities such that Legal can deliver effective and efficient solutions that bring true value to the business. This frees up lawyer time from 're-inventing the wheel' and mundane tasks to enable focus on true value-adding work. Also, by relying on other competencies than pure Legal (incl. project management, finance, communication, and IT), the Legal function is able to provide better (and cheaper) business solutions.

Vice President, Attorney Jacob Fossar Petersen,
Novo Nordisk A/S
